SAN FRANCISC

SAYS FATHER WAS JFK ASSASSIN

Ricky Don White, above, told reporters in Dallas Monday that his father, the late Dallas policeman Roscoe White, right, had been one of three men who killed President John F. Kennedy in 1963. White said his father and the other alleged assassins had been working for the CIA. He claimed his father was on a grassy knoll in front of the presidential caravan and fired two shots that struck Kennedy. He said he drew his conclusions partly from his father's diary, which disappeared in 1988. The elder White died in 1971. White admitted he had tried to sell a book or movie based on his story. The CIA denied that the elder White had ever been employed by the agency and called the younger White's story "ludicrous." The Warren Commission concluded that Lee Harvey Oswald, acting alone, had fired the shots that killed Kennedy and wounded John Connally, then the Texas governor, on Nov. 22, 1963, in Dallas. Despite the commission's findings, conspiracy theories have abounded since the assassination.
